

	DR VEERANOOT NISSAPATORN Associate Professor
	Futuristic Science Research Center (FSRC) School of Science and World Union for Herbal Drug Discovery (WUHeDD) Walailak University Nakhon Si Thammarat Thailand Email: nissapat@gmail.com OR veeranoot.ni@wu.ac.th

Dr Veeranoot graduated with MBBS from Lady Hardinge Medical College (LHMC), University of Delhi, India and Master of Clinical Tropical Medicine from Mahidol University, Thailand. She was working as a contract lecturer and later an Associate Professor at the Department of Parasitology, Faculty of Medicine, University of Malaya, Malaysia (from 1999 to 2017). She was later joining as Associate Professor at the School of Allied Health Sciences, Walailak University in southern Thailand till January 2025. She is now working at the Futuristic Science Research Center - School of Science at the same institution till date. Dr Veeranoot is actively involved in her research areas of interest: 1). Infectious parasitic diseases include epidemiology and clinical relevance, 2). Diagnostic challenges, 3). Natural products, 4). Water-based research, and 5). One-Health for Sustainability. Dr Veeranoot is a coordinator of 2 international research networks (IRN); Southeast Asia Water Team (SEA Water Team) and World Union for Herbal Drug Discovery (WUHeDD). Also, she has published more than 150 papers including book chapters and is an editorial board member of reputable journals as well as an active reviewer of more than 60 international journals. She also serves as the Editor (Guest, Academic and Associate), Editor in Chief of Infectious Disorders – Drug Targets (IDDT)-Bentham, Speaker, Adjunct faculty, Guest lecturer, as well as Visiting Professor. Dr Veeranoot has been listed in the World Top 2% Scientists in the category of "Career long citation impact" and "Single year citation impact" in the disciplines of Tropical Medicine in 2021 to 2025 by Stanford University, USA. Dr Veeranoot is currently the “Chair” of the Asia-Pacific of Researchers and Educators (APCORE) – International Advisory Board.