

	Prof. Dr Matheus Bertanha
	matheus.bertanha@unesp.br
Associate Professor Dr. Matheus Bertanha is a physician, faculty member, and researcher at the Botucatu Medical School (FMB/UNESP). He received his medical degree from the Catanduva School of Medicine (FAMECA) and completed his Medical Residency in Vascular Surgery at the Botucatu Medical School (FMB/UNESP). He holds a Master's degree in Biotechnology, a PhD in General Foundations of Surgery, and a Habilitation (Livre-Docente). At FMB/UNESP, he is actively involved in clinical care, teaching, and research. His research focuses on regenerative medicine, tissue engineering, biomaterials, innovative therapeutic approaches, and pharmaceutical development.	